

WriterLink.org

ONE WORD EACH STORY

This ice breaker writing exercise should not be taken too seriously. Go around the group asking each member to help create a story by contributing only one word each. The story is likely to be quite random, and do stress that this is about storytelling being fun and games – the serious side of writing comes later!

If any story telling lessons are learned from this exercise it might be that writing stories takes planning, and can be best accomplished alone!