

WriterLink.org

WRITER BINGO – FOR MORE EXPERIENCED WRITERS

A fun game to get to know the writers in your group. Print out the bingo cards and read out the following questions. The writers check off anything they can answer with a 'yes.' The winner is the first writer to complete a horizontal or vertical row of five.

Here are the questions:

Have you ever planned using the 'Save the Cat' method?

Have you ever finished writing a novel?

Have you ever spoken to a literary agent?

Have you ever worked on a pitch for your novel?

Have you ever written a scene involving more than one person dying?

Have you ever succeeded at NaNoWriMo? (National Novel Writing Month.)

Have you ever set a story in the future?

Have you based a fictional character on your self?

Have you ever written fan fiction?

Have you ever researched a historical fact for a story?

Have you ever read and critiqued another writer's work?

Have you ever called yourself a writer when you've first met someone?

Have you written a sex scene?

Have you planned a story using post-it notes?

Have you ever received a book about writing as a gift?

Have you mentioned your writing on social media?

Have you ever entered a writing competition?

Have you ever set a word count target for each day?

Have you tried morning pages?

Have you ever paid for a writing course, retreat, or festival?

Have you ever turned the internet off to improve your writing productivity?

Have you ever written on a laptop in a coffee shop?

Have you ever owned a Moleskine notebook?

WriterLink.org – Writing groups and courses

StoryPlanner.com – Plan a better story

Have you ever been drunk when you're writing?

Have you ever had a story idea but then discovered an existing novel with a similar plot?

WRITER BINGO

Received a book about writing as a gift	Set a story in the future	Had a story idea then discovered an existing novel with a similar plot	Written fan fiction	Written on a laptop in a coffee shop
Finished writing a novel	Owned a Moleskine notebook	Called yourself a writer when you met someone	Worked on a pitch for your novel	Paid for a writing course, retreat, or festival
Planned a story using post-it notes	Researched a historical fact for a story	Based a fictional character on your self	Planned using the 'Save the Cat' method	Spoken to a literary agent
Read and critiqued another writer's work	Entered a writing competition	Written a scene with more than one person dying	Set a word count target for each day	Succeeded at NaNoWriMo
Tried morning pages	Written a sex scene	Been drunk when writing	Mentioned your own writing on social media	Turned the internet off to improve writing productivity