

WriterLink.org

CHARACTER PROMPTS

Here are some story openings you can use to consider character. Pick one line to work on and then discuss how each member of the group developed the character.

The old man couldn't help remembering that day at school.

Felicity had broken up so many times before, but this time it was different.

Robert had never been on a protest march before.

Jane loved stationary, and today she would write in her favourite notebook.

When the postman rang the doorbell Mary never answered.

Jack knew he was a terrible person, he'd known that for a very long time.

Choosing the exact right puppy mattered to Caroline.

Sarah didn't leave the house much these days.

If only she'd told the truth.

No couple ever had the perfect marriage.

Simon didn't mean to kill her.